

Broadcast Flag Mandate is a major violation of my ability to use products I have purchased. This is just the latest attempt by Hollywood film and music middle men to stifle technology that provides the consumer with entertainment options. Previously it was the VCR and CD duplication that was going to bankrupt Hollywood, now it is the internet and portals. Instead of trying to cripple personal computers and arresting teenage kids for downloading metallica why do you not insist the Hollywood find a distribution model that compliments technology advances not hobble them.
